We all seem to remember the story
The one about the loss of glory
The one in which a guy lost all
In which he tried to be above all
But not above as in his might
All he wanted was to fly
But was this just to see the world
From the same height as the birds
Or did he have another reason
Did he feel like in a prison?
Here, down on this vast land
Full of people that just can’t
Seem to comprehend his mind
Who just queue in one big line
People who don’t stray at all
Even if they hit a wall
Now I’m asking you, my friend
What’d you do if you could fly
Would you even think to ascend
Just a small attempt, a try
Now, be honest, please no lies
I can see it in your eyes
And if you ever get to fly

What would keep you in the sky?
What would fuel you to stay
To fly away just like a prey
Is it the undiscovered land you'd find
Or the fear in your mind
Which keeps telling you to fly
Otherwise you'd fall and die
Don't be fearful, don't just cower
Because the fear will devour
It will absolutely scour
All the good that gives you power
You just have to keep in mind
Icarus, the boy who tried
Cause even though Icarus crashed
Like a thunder and was trashed
Hie remains managed to paint
All the oceans and the sky
With his story that won't die
There's a little piece of him
In the sun even the wind
Cause even if Icarus fell
Our boy Icarus flew
Even if Icarus died

Icarus at least has tried
You don’t have to fear the fall
Just remember, that is all
Just because you fell so hard
Scattering you in pieces, shards
Every piece will now reach
In a newfound place, each
Learning things and hearing stories
Full of wisdom, full of glories
Like a king or daring peasant
On a throne or on the pavement
With the people of noble birth
Or the kids that play in dirt
You will be a man that holds
A high value, more than gold’s
You won’t even be compared
To the man that has not dared
To even attempt to try
To get off the ground, to fly
So tell me what’s to keep you bound
To this earth that is just round
Go, explore, don’t stand in place
Fly and fall, do it with grace